The Act of Consecration of Man calls us to priestly service in the world. When we gather together at the altar, we can receive nourishment and strength for this service.

This retreat weekend is intended as an opportunity to reflect on the path of inner priesthood through presentations, individual reflection and discussion in smaller and larger groups.

It is a great privilege to welcome Rev. Jonah Evans to co-host this weekend event. Jonah did his placement in the Forest Row congregation. He has been one of the directors of the North American priests' training since 2016.

We hope that this weekend will serve those who wish to deepen their connection to the Act of Consecration and membership. We would also be glad to meet anyone who is considering the path to sacramental priesthood. Please let us know in advance if this is your intention. There will be space for individual conversations to discuss this. On Sunday morning, Jonah Evans will speak about the training of priests for sacramental service.

It would be a great help for us if you can apply online via this link: tiny.one/PrhoodVII22

You will find details about possibilities for accommodation there, too. There are some beds available at Peredur in East Grinstead and we have some offers from the congregation on a first-come, first-served basis.

We have budgeted for a span of contributions: standard (£50), supporting (£60) and supported (£40). All details are available with the application online. You will need to pay for accommodation separately.

If you are unable to apply online, please send let us know your name, address, phone number, email address and any dietary or other needs, and send your cheque made out to The Christian Community in Forest Row to:
